On the Road Again

We drive across the country the way most people might go from home to work and back again to home. I guess you could call us nomads, except for the fact that our trips have become fairly regular, mostly to Las Vegas, Nevada, than back to New York, our home for the past 35 years.

My husband and I are retired high school teachers, which means that we have plenty of time to travel. Three of our five children now live west of the Mississippi River. All of our grandchildren live in New York, and we have two large dogs. Therefore, staying in Las Vegas for more than three consecutive weeks is generally enjoyable. And so, we find ourselves back on the road time and time again.

Las Vegas had become our sunshine sanctuary; we have become completely fed up with New York's cold and gloomy winters and are determined to spend as much time as possible in the warm sunny West. Moreover, we have extended family in Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, and California, so vacationing in Las Vegas makes a lot of sense for us.

[1] So we have two adopted dogs, both of which are shelter mutts, flying is not an option; we want the dogs with us and we want to avoid paying boarding fees. [2] And so, here we are, for the second time this month, trekking

Study Plan

The Study Plan guides you through the course in the most efficient way possible and helps you stay organized and on track. By selecting your desired end date or test date, the study plan automatically adapts to your timeframe and feeds you the appropriate amount of content each day.

Each study task is given a number of Knowledge Points based on length, difficulty, and importance. The Daily Knowledge Goals informs you how many points are needed each day to complete the course on time. If you miss a day or complete more than the daily goal, the study plan automatically re-adjusts.
