Dorothy Vaughan

A mathematician, Dorothy Vaughan was the first African-American woman to be promoted as a head of personnel at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, later known as NASA. She was the head of the West Area Computers, leading a group of African-American mathematicians through crucial space projects.

Dorothy Vaughan was one of three African American women featured in the movie Hidden Figures.

You too have the potential to be the next great mathematician – If Dorothy Vaughan can do it, so can you!